Chapter 355: The Skies Filled with Light

Sung Jin-Woo, now a transcendent being far beyond comprehension, gazed upon the vast multiverse he governed. Even with Gabriel, Michael, and the countless celestial beings already tasked with their divine roles, he realized that the skies across all realms lacked a presence befitting his vision of divine order and beauty. The skies, vast and eternal, were to become sanctuaries of light and hope.

Thus, from the infinite radiance of his divine power, Sung Jin-Woo created a new celestial host: centillions of centillions of angels, each formed from the purest light.

The Creation of Infinite Hosts

These angels, unlike the battle-oriented legions of Gabriel or the blessing-bringers of Michael, were created with a singular purpose: to embody and spread the divine radiance of the True Absolute One across the skies of every realm. Their forms were ethereal and resplendent, each uniquely adorned with luminescent patterns and wings that shimmered with celestial hues, ranging from gold to silver, sapphire to emerald.

They were imbued with immense divine energy but required no sustenance or rest. Their presence alone brought peace and awe to those who gazed upon them. They sang hymns of the Divine Triad, their voices resonating as a harmonious symphony that echoed across realms, inspiring worship, courage, and serenity in all living beings.

The Skies Across Realms

Sung Jin-Woo sent these angels to reside in the skies of every realm.

Absolute Realm Universe: The skies above the Planets of Apostles and Planets of Heavenly Soldiers became a spectacle of divine beauty. Angels soared in formations, their movements synchronized like a celestial dance, filling the heavens with radiance.

Earth and Mana-Adapted Worlds: The people of Earth, now mana-adapted and thriving, were astonished as their skies were graced by these celestial beings. Hunters, priests, and civilians alike gazed in awe at the angels that now made their presence known, interpreting it as a sign of divine approval and protection.

Shadowverse and Shadow Abyss: Even in the darker realms, where shadows reigned supreme, the angels brought a balance of light, their glow illuminating the eternal night, signifying the harmony between light and dark under Sung Jin-Woo’s rule.

Gladiator's Arenas and Eternal Battlefields: Even in the chaotic realms of endless battle, the skies now bore witnesses of divine authority, ensuring that the purpose of these battles remained pure and contained.

Purpose of the Celestial Host

The new angels served multiple purposes:

1. Guardians of the Skies: They acted as sentinels, ensuring that no external threats could breach the realms without facing their wrath. Their radiance acted as a barrier, their hymns repelling entities of malevolent intent.

2. Harbingers of Peace: The presence of angels in the skies instilled a sense of calm and hope among the inhabitants of the realms. Their light dispelled fear, despair, and chaos, bringing unity and inspiration.

3. Messengers of the Divine Triad: They carried divine messages and signs from the True Absolute One to the inhabitants of the realms. Their appearance often heralded blessings or warnings, depending on the will of the Divine Triad.

4. Symbol of Divine Sovereignty: By filling the skies with angels, Sung Jin-Woo affirmed his absolute dominion over the multiverse. The angels were living symbols of his eternal presence, reminding all beings of his watchful gaze and protective embrace.

The Eternal Light

With the skies of the multiverse now filled with the light of centillions upon centillions of angels, Sung Jin-Woo’s creation became a testament to his boundless power and compassion. The heavens themselves had become a reflection of his divine will, ensuring that every soul, from the humblest mortal to the mightiest deity, would know that they were part of a grand, harmonious design.

From his throne in the True Absolute One Domain, Sung Jin-Woo watched as his angels spread across the realms, their light filling even the furthest corners of existence. Though his power was infinite and his throne vast, he found peace in knowing that his creations continued to thrive under his care.

The multiverse, now adorned with celestial light, stood as a masterpiece of his divine artistry, a beacon of hope and order for all eternity.
